Meet the Vet

Sue is a vet. She works at a vet's surgery in Scotland and she looks after lots of different animals every day. Let's have a look at what Sue did this morning:

8:30 a.m.

My first job was to check on the animals who have stayed at the vets overnight. I took their temperature and checked that they had eaten their breakfast. Some of them were ready to go home.

Practice Questions

b. What is Sue's first job in the morning?

Tick one.

- eating her breakfast
- taking her temperature
- checking on the animals
- getting ready to go home

A puppy called Ralph needed a microchip. A microchip is a tiny card that we put underneath the dog's skin. When we scan the card, we can see where Ralph lives.

Next, a cat called Oscar had sore teeth. He will need to have an operation to clean his teeth and take out any bad ones.

After that, a rabbit called Snowball needed her nails clipping.

We asked Sue a few questions to find out more about what it is like being a vet.

Why did you become a vet?

I love animals and I love science. Being a vet involves both. I get to help people and heal their pets.

What is the best part of your job?

Do you have a favourite animal?

I love cheetahs. They are the fastest animal on Earth. They are incredibly strong, clever and they are also very beautiful.

Is it hard being a vet?

It is very hard. The long days are very busy and tiring. Sometimes, it is very sad because the animals are just too poorly for us to help them.

What would you say to children who want to be a vet when they are older?

You must work extremely hard at school. You should enjoy science and maths and try to get lots of experience working with animals.

"It's no good trying to look cute," Maddy said. "You are going to have to climb down."

Biggles looked down. He was really high! It made him feel all funny in his paws.

He meowed even louder.
